People are portrayed on the <sup>both</sup> ~~both~~ <sup>paintings</sup> images, although, it is a man and a woman in the listening task and two men in the reading task who are shown to us in their full length. The minuscule details that were impeccably depicted create an impression that the people on these <sup>paintings</sup> ~~images~~ might be real, and that if you get just a bit closer to them, you can feel them breathing. The people on the first <sup>painting</sup> ~~image~~ are ~~were~~ depicted <sup>in</sup> at their house, they are also holding hands, also, whereas we know what <sup>is</sup> the setting on the second one, it is London and it <sup>is</sup> the 16th century. Looking at what the people are doing, we can see that on the first painting, they might have got married recently, whereas on the second one, they are to prevent Henry <sup>VIII</sup> from what he is going to do. All in all, both paintings can be called masterpieces and deserve enormous praise for the attention to details that the painters paid while creating these works of art that are considered ~~to be really~~ valuable nowadays these days.

Sample number one could be created by Banksy whereas the second one ~~could not~~ couldn't. Firstly, Banksy had already painted pictures on two sides of a building. Secondly, Banksy's style is extraordinary, so he probably would not paint the second sample as it goes against his style.

Thirdly, Banksy has a tendency of to depict people in unusual poses, for example, such one as the boy has ~~on the~~ <sup>first</sup> ~~second~~ picture. Finally, another fact can be considered that goes against the assumption that Banksy painted the second picture, and it is the fact that he usually did not relate any of his paintings to politics.

The book "7 habits habits of highly effective people" written by Stephen Covey in the 20th century can provide a great example of people showing forgiveness as well as the book "How to win friends and influence people" written by Dale C. Both authors were writing mostly about the communication between people. In this essay, I am going to compare two characters' views from these books that have opposing views on forgiveness.

Forgiveness is the key to success in life. George is a character in the book "7 habits of highly effective people". Being a teenager, he was sold by his brother as a slave. So he had to work all day long in a different country and he could only think <sup>only</sup> about the betrayal of his brother, <sup>that</sup> made

George's life miserable. About a month later, he decided that he needed to forgive his brother because he actually had an important reason to do sell George, ~~because~~ (their mother needed immediate surgery). Since that moment, the teenager's ~~had~~ life changed ~~completely~~.

No longer was he mad at his brother. With all those positive thoughts, he started working harder, it was noticed, and just a year later he managed to escape break free, and then he became ~~one~~ an extremely wealthy and successful person. ~~The~~ The fact that he forgave his brother changed his life, and George was sure that forgiveness is the key to success in life.

~~Only~~ Only weak people forgive. Laura was a character in the book "How to win friends and influence people". One day her husband offended her ~~during~~ ~~the~~ argument when they were arguing. She ~~offer~~ that she could never forgive him. Even after the conversation she had with ~~the~~ ~~date~~ the author of the book, she still didn't want to try to understand her husband. Eventually, they divorced. ~~at~~ ~~month~~ ~~later~~ Laura lived the rest of her life in sadness as she was sure that only weak people forgive.

In conclusion, <sup>I want to say</sup> we can see that the ability to forgive people is important and it leads to success in life. I agree with this ~~poor~~ idea and I think that people should always forgive each other.

didn't want to forgive her husband for being rude with her. A neighbour also told her that the husband had an affair with another woman. Laura believed the neighbour and her husband could do nothing to make her forgive him. Even when the author of the book himself had a conversation with the woman, she would still listen to him and didn't want to say to forgive, understand her h.b.

Eventually he ~~had~~ married the neighbour who and Laura lived in misery for the rest of her life. She thought forgiveness is a trait of weak people. 78
