Art is sometimes an outlet of peoples feeling that reflects our perception of the world. Sometimes, it goes beyond the boundaries to which we are restricted ~~for~~ and thus enables us to create the ~~scenarios~~ ~~which we can apply~~ ~~on the future~~ perception of the world ~~which is not linked~~ ~~from the way that is not affected~~ by our known notion of ~~that~~ something should be done. Aldous Huxley, who was the dystopian writer of 20th century, depicted ~~the world~~ in his book called "Brave New World" ~~the world~~ ~~depicted~~ of my form of art. The reflection that would follow here would be focused on the outlooks of art which ~~are~~ the characters of this book have.

Imagine being deprived of any ability to think and act ~~without~~ ~~your~~ out of your own accord. What would it be like? In "Brave New World" we can see that kind of situation. Take, for example, Lenina, who is absolutely indifferent to the matters which are not directly connected to the pleasure of her own, primarily entertaining-related interests. The absence of art which is in place in this "Brave New World" affects its society in a way that ~~there~~ there is no room for self-expression and reflections on the status quo, and ~~further~~, such a society ceases to ~~stop~~ notice things that ~~are~~ may one day ~~break~~ break upon them. Lenina takes no interest in art, she therefore loses her own ~~identity~~ ~~the~~ ~~former~~ ability to ponder our things and she is no longer able to discern what is an evil and what is virtue.

~~Her partner, however, is~~

The Bernard, her temporary partner, is, however, resistant to that very foundation on which the brave-new society is situated. He is opposed to being engaged in the entertaining related activities. ~~As~~ He finds no place for him in this society, because it doesn't have a place for those who are ~~more~~ interested in reflecting on the problems of that society. It is no wonder that art is absent in this world, for it is ~~the~~ art that provides with an opportunity to go beyond ~~the~~ ~~world~~ our perception of the world and see ~~what~~ ~~our~~ our own misgivings and folds. ~~One Bernard~~ ~~finds~~ ~~that~~ ~~exists~~ It is once Bernard discovers the remnants of the art of people who live in the ~~only~~ ~~and~~ that is only the one that was not affected by the onset of this brave-new society that he ~~also~~ finds the way to live on ~~feeling~~. He ultimately stumbles upon that outlet that allows him to act as he wishes.

In my view, art is vital for sharing our perception of the world that surrounds us.

We all shall understand what it actually is that happens around us, in order to get the misgivings and therefore take measures to ~~prevent~~ ~~the~~ ~~onset~~ ~~of~~ ~~the~~ things that one may deem as being ominous.

Art makes man human and aware of to what extent what he do is proper.
Art is the mirror in which one can see his fears and acts.
