

98

МОСКОВСКИЙ ГОСУДАРСТВЕННЫЙ УНИВЕРСИТЕТ имени М.В. ЛОМОНОСОВА

ОЛИМПИАДНАЯ РАБОТА

Наименование олимпиады школьников: «Ломоносов»

Профиль олимпиады: Английский язык

ФИО участника олимпиады: Власова Дарья Михайловна

Класс: 8

Технический балл: 98

Дата проведения: 05 марта 2022 года

Lucmobox 1.
ucm 1.

Quok 1.

A.

1. True; as every word contains a meaning, something, it is supposed to symbolize.
2. True; symbolism is one of the best ways to get an idea of a certain aesthetic experience across. Many metaphors are very commonly used, so they are easily recognizable, such as life is often symbolized by a journey.
3. False; symbolism helps us to communicate and to describe our aesthetic experience easier and better, ~~instead~~ of more economically.
4. False; Prof. Levin states, that simple symbolism is commonly accepted and is easy to understand.
5. True; implicit symbolism usually lacks explanation of private and ambiguous meaning, which makes it hard to understand.
6. Not stated.
7. True; there are no set-in-stone rules for symbolism, so the only way of learning is reading and taking note of other metaphors.
8. False; too many private and unique allegories may create a risk of one's writing being misunderstood.

Ucmobuk 2.
Ucm 2.

Task 1.

B.

Imagination and creativity are very important in our everyday lives. We must encourage kids to develop these essential qualities.

Imagination can help you ~~to~~ escape reality for a short ~~period of~~ time by drawing or writing your own stories. It can ~~serve~~ ^{be} as a distraction from dark thoughts. For example, "Alice in Wonderland", ~~who a girl, who~~ went into a magical, ~~but~~ unreal world of her fantasies. ^{Furthermore} ~~Also~~, creativity may be required at work, if you need to come up with a unique product to sell. Without these skills, kids are gonna have a tough time in this world.

words: 92.

W

учебник 3.
учеб 3.

Блок 1 + Блок 2 =
98

Блок 2.

An interesting box was standing in the corner. Interesting, because it hadn't been seen in this house before. A small dog carefully approached the box, sniffing it. An unknown smell was coming from this mysterious package, enticing the dog to peek inside. As we all know, mysteries are always amusing, even for dogs. Or, in our case, for puppies. A bit terrified, it opened the box and a bunch of frogs stormed out of the package! Now even more scared, the puppy instantly fled, hiding in the depths of the house, pretending that it had never seen the box. What even was that?

Well, whatever the case, the deed can't be undone. Now the frogs, delighted to finally see the light of day again, are rushing outside of the room, roaming freely around the house, getting into the kitchen, where Martha, a senior woman, is cleaning up, not suspecting a thing. Strange noises force her to turn around and open her mouth in shock. What are these creatures doing here? Martha is not ^{from the} faint of heart, even her looks would be enough to tell you that. She always had ^S her hair put in a tight bun, for them not to get in the way and she ^{is} also very ^{muscular}, so you can imagine her in wrath!

"Oh, these must be Henry's fishing frogs!", Martha realized ^S shortly after. And without a second thought, she, like a furious hurricane, storms out of the kitchen and heads upstairs to her husband, who is peacefully checking his fishing rod and equipment. Henry is a quite, ^{balancing} grey-haired old man in old-fashioned clothes. "I told him to keep an eye on these things!", she seems insanely mad.

- Everything seems to be in good order! - he mumbles happily, ^{under his breath} not knowing that in a matter of seconds his wife will come crashing, hitting him with a broom, yelling something, that is impossible to comprehend. Henry, confused, will then have to sit down, as his head will hurt as if ^{an elephant} someone stomped on him, causing stars and sparkles to appear in his eyes. He will sit, wondering, what he did wrong. What a sorrow sight... The puppy will crawl out of its lair to see what is the reason for all the shouting. Seems like Henry isn't gonna go fishing... All because of this white little naughty puppy with innocent eyes! But no one has to know.

Lehrbuch 1.

Mem 1.

Imagination and creativity are very important in our day to day lives.

However, many schools are now deciding to remove art and music classes, the only ^{we must} subjects that encourage kids to develop these essential qualities.

With the help of ^{to} imagination, you can ^{help you} escape reality for a ^{short} brief period of time by drawing or writing your own stories. It ^{can serve as a distraction from} helps to distract you from

^{so} dark thoughts. ^{For example,} This reminds me of "Alice in Wonderland", who went into a magical, but ^{to} unreal world of her imagination. Also, creativity may sometimes be ^{to} required at work, if you need to come up with a ^{to} unique product to ^{to} sell. Without these skills, kids are gonna have a tough time in this world.

~~What happened? What happened?~~ ^{yelled} ~~asked~~ Henry, as he came running after ^{in his house} hearing a loud scree. An interesting box was standing in the corner. Interesting, because it hasn't been seen before. A small dog has carefully approached the box, sniffing it. An unknown smell was coming from this mysterious package, enticing. ^{to peek inside} As we know, mysteries are always amusing, even for dog. Or, in our case, even for a puppy. A bit terrified, it opened the box and a bunch of frogs stormed out of the package. Now even more scared, the puppy immediately fled, hiding in the depths of the house, as if it had never seen the box. ^{Now} What even was that? Well, whatever the case, the deed ^{is} has can't be undone. The frogs, delighted to finally be free, ^{are rushing} rushed outside of the room and into the kitchen, where Martha, a senior woman, ^{is} was cleaning up, not suspecting a thing. ^{is} Having heard a strange noise force her to turn around and open ^{is} her mouth in shock. What are these creatures doing here? "Oh, these must be Henry's frogs for fishing!", a thought comes to Martha's mind. And with that, she, like a furious hurricane, storms out of the kitchen, walking quickly upstairs, to her husband, who ^{is} is checking his fishing equipment. ^{peacefully} "I told him to keep an eye on them!", she ^{is} seems to be ^{is} in a madly mad. -Everything seems to be in good order, he mumbles happily, not knowing, that in a matter of seconds his wife ^{will} is gonna come crashing, hitting him with a broom, yelling something, that is impossible to comprehend. Henry will then have to sit down, as his head will hurt like crazy, causing stars and sparkles to appear in his eyes, wondering, what he did wrong. The puppy will then crawl out of its lair, to see what is the reason for all the shouting. Seems like Henry isn't gonna go finish.