Dear editor,
Thank you for your striking article. I decided to write a letter to you, since you invited everyone interested to comment on the article. I really liked the fact that you raised a problem of global warming. You also stated that our current actions are not enough to stop reduce global warming. However, in my opinion, people all over the world and international organizations are doing a great job in struggling with this problem.

Firstly, ~~new documents and treaties are signed.~~
That means that

Firstly, new international documents and treaties have been signed recently. It means that people all over the world are ready to save the planet, and make a difference in the world ecological situation and decide to solve the problem on the transnational level. For example, recent Kyoto agreement was signed several years ago. It established CO<sub>2</sub> emissions restrictions and made countries to start an emission trading that allowed to reduce the amount of the carbon dioxide <sup>released</sup> produced all over the world.

Secondly, technological progress provides an opportunity to make the production of goods and people's routine less harmful for the planet. For instance, Tesla and other automobile companies expand the production of the ~~electro~~ electronic eco-friendly cars that ~~don't~~ do not need the fuel to drive. These cars ~~to~~ are becoming more and more popular all over the world, especially in Europe.

Nevertheless, there are more ways of reducing ~~the~~ global warming. The most effective one is implementing higher taxes on using ~~cars and cars~~, planes and using methods of production that release much CO<sub>2</sub>. In addition, it is highly effective to reuse paper and plastic in order to reduce their production.

To sum up, humans have a great influence over the nature and the planet. That is why we are responsible for the environment and we have to do as much as possible to keep it in a good condition.
