1. Teenagers' mental and physical functions tend to be at their peak during adolescence. Also, during this period of life, adolescents are able to overcome crises ~~twice~~ two times faster than adults, according to the research mentioned in Text 1.

2. According to Text 2, teenagers had to start working ~~from~~ earlier back in ~~the~~ the 1500s, down to the fact that they had to help their families with farm work. Besides, ~~it~~ ~~wasn't~~ until the 20th century, ~~young~~ <sup>most</sup> young people could not ~~attend~~ afford attending schools, and their parents ~~can~~ were not able to provide ~~them~~ their teenage kids with financial and emotional support.

3. Text 1 and Text 2 focus on different aspects of adolescence. The first text focuses on the physical and mental aspect of ~~the~~ teenagers' life the life of teenagers. The second text focuses more draws reader's attention to the social aspect of the life of adolescents, analyzing ~~is~~ informing the reader about the ways teenagers were perceived in different eras, and how it affected their daily life.

4. The first Text states that teenage years, ~~from~~ are the best time of our lives. I tend to agree with this statement, since, indeed, one's abilities are at their highest in adolescence, and life seems really vibrant. As a teenager, myself I can 100% agree with the fact that all the "ordinary" things I do, like sleeping, listening to music and feating, seem ~~to me~~ to be really ~~good~~ out-of-this-world amazing.

5. I am inclined to believe that teenagers are capable of becoming independent even without education. For example, there are jobs that don't require any education, like a hairdresser or a waiter, and yet it is possible to earn a living with these jobs.

First of all, I reckon we should visit some historical landmarks and museums in order to learn more about the history of London. ~~The first few places that came to mind are the British Museum, which contains all sorts of archaeological treasures, Buckingham Palace, which used to be the residence of Elizabeth II, Tower Bridge, which overlooks the Thames. and By the way, you we should, doubtlessly, see Big Ben and the London Eye, as they are some of the most popular tourist attractions in London. We could use the Tube to get from one place to another. It would be really cool, since London is the first city where metro was built, and we will not get stuck in traffic jams, too. Clearly, visiting Downtown Abbey is a must-see, and we could might learn about the British history of history of the British Parliament when visiting that place.~~

Secondly, if the weather is nice, we ~~can~~ should definitely go for a walk in Hyde Park, and then go to West End and try out

 When it comes to moving around the city, I have two ideas. We could use the symbolic two-floor tourist buses to go sightseeing, ~~or~~ Or we can use the Tube to get from one place to another. I prefer the second option, since this way we will not get stuck in traffic jams. Besides, London is the first city where metro was built, so we feel like ~~commat~~ using the Tube to commute would be really fantastic.

Finally, if we feel like watching a movie, we should go to the Odeon - a popular cinema in London.

Sightseeing

First of all, I reckon we should visit a few historical landmarks and museums in order to learn more about the history of London. I suggest seeing Buckingham Palace, which used to be the residency of Elizabeth II, along with the British Museum containing all sorts of archaeological treasures and Tower Bridge, which overlooks the Thames. By the way, the London Eye and Big Ben are a must-see, too. To learn more about the history of the British Parliament, we have to visit Downtown Abbey 10, the residency of the Prime Minister.

Leisure

Secondly, if the weather is nice, we might go to Hyde Park for a walk and enjoy the music the street musicians are playing there. Afterwards, we can go to West End and have fish-and-chips with some clotted cream for lunch.

Also, if we feel like watching a movie, we should go to Odeon - a popular cinema in London.

Commute

When it comes to moving around the city, I have two suggestions. We could use the symbolic red ~~two-level~~ two-story buses to go sightseeing. Or, we can use the Tube. I prefer the second option, since this way we will avoid getting stuck in traffic jams. Besides, London is the first city where metro was built, so it would be fantastic.

Dear Sir/Madame,
 I am writing to you to reflect on the ~~idea~~ problem mentioned in ~~the~~ <sup>an</sup> article in the national online news media that I have recently read. Doubtlessly, the daunting prospect that ~~one day~~ possibility of climate change ~~destroy~~

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am writing to you to reflect on the idea mentioned in an article I've recently read. Without doubt, the ~~daunting~~ prospect of climate change ~~being~~ the becoming the reason millions of lives ~~get~~ <sup>get</sup> threatened, ~~is~~ might be overwhelming. Obviously, people have to take action, ~~I am inclined to believe that~~ However, ~~I am inclined to believe that the idea~~ reducing the ~~I am inclined to believe that~~ <sup>cutting down</sup> the amount of CO<sub>2</sub> by reducing the number of airplane flights is a great idea, although it has a few drawbacks.

On the one hand, giving up flying seems to be a great way to reduce our carbon footprint. Planes exhude a lot of CO<sub>2</sub> into the atmosphere, so the best way to cut down emissions is to fly less. Besides, nowadays there are a lot of ~~ways to things~~ ~~ways to things~~ we one can do to maintain the same ~~type~~ lifestyle without flying. For example, virtual meetings, travelling to local places for holidays are all ways to emit less CO<sub>2</sub> into the atmosphere.

On the other hand, it seems merely wishful thinking to believe that humanity can give up flying entirely. Therefore, ~~it~~ some might find the fact that they ~~are~~ <sup>are</sup> cutting have given up flying, while someone else retorts to using airplanes, ~~or even abuses~~ their ~~reputable~~ position to fly more than needed fly use unjust. Indeed, some celebrities have recently been involved in scandals for using airplanes to get to a neighbouring city, abusing their position. Clearly, their actions ~~undermined~~ ~~the~~ were demotivating people who have decided to tackle the issue of climate change.

However, I reckon that ~~tho~~ we have to try our best to reduce global warming. Although there are some things that we cannot give up, there ~~are many~~ ~~way~~ is a myriad of ~~mat~~ ways to tackle the issue and be more sustainable. We can use public transport instead of personal vehicles, consume less electricity, recycle old things.

After all, a result can only be achieved if everyone makes an effort. It doesn't have to be grand or radical, but it has to be something. Our earth is worth protecting, so, to my mind, ~~to~~ to reduce our carbon footprint, we have to act wisely and ~~be~~ responsible. Only then will our future be worth looking forward to.
