1. During the teenage years adolescents have the most active and developed physical and mental functions, for example, strength and memory.

2. Adolescents had to start working much earlier back in the day than now as they needed to contribute to their family income to get more financial means for their living.

3. Text 1 and Text 2 focus on different aspects as the first text outlines the advantages of physical and mental functions of the teenage years, whereas the second one includes the comparison of the adolescent's life during the industrialisation period and in today's world of higher living standards.

4. Teens have an exceptional ability to overcome crises and find something positive in negative events. I partly disagree with the statement. Personally, I believe that teenager's nervous system is vulnerable and can be easily affected by stressful situations. In some cases adolescents even need the help of a psychologist to avoid bad consequences.

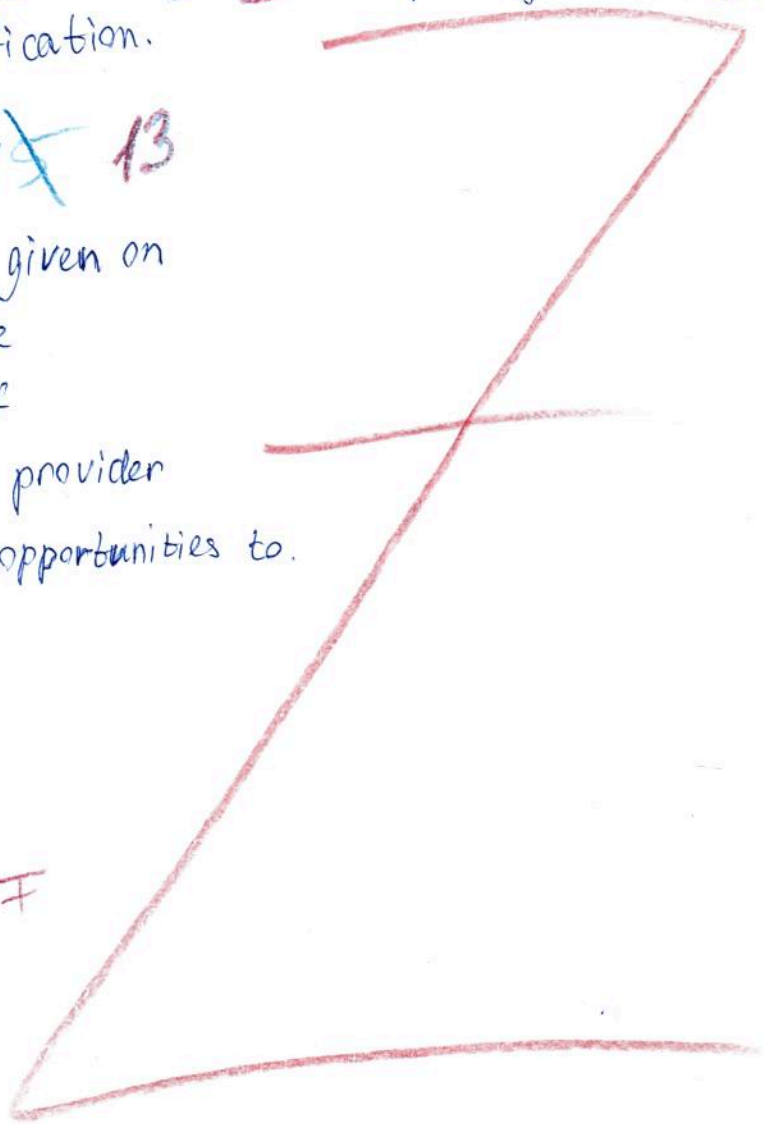

5. Actually, I am convinced that it is almost impossible for teenagers to become independent not at the expense of their education. The reason is that to become independent an adolescent needs to make their living on their own. However, it is very hard to get well-paid job without a proper qualification.

The UK has rich history. It is represented in the British Museum. You can learn almost everything there, from William the Conqueror's invasion and the establishment of the Church of England by Henry VIII up to the rule of Elizabeth II and the British Parliament.

Travelling by Tube is convenient as it is very fast. Thus, you can see the Tower Bridge and The Old Lady just in some hours. Unfortunately, it is prohibited to enter the Buckingham Palace but every tourist takes photo with handsome beateaters who guard its walls. Also, visit the Westminster Abbey. It is well-known for the kings and queens who lie there. Go to the West End and see the most famous play ~~the~~ "The Cats". Walking in Hyde Park and trying ~~the~~ clotted cream is the best ending for the trip!

Dear editor,

The article on reducing the number of airplane flights ^{as I am concerned about the ecology on Earth.} interested me ~~and~~ I decided to respond to the points raised and give my own views. The problem brought up in the text is the emissions from planes which pollute the atmosphere.^{ph} Personally, I believe that the solution to it is not the reduction of flights but the exchange of airplane patrol.

Clearly, airlines provide comfortable and fast means of transport. Thanks to planes people can quickly get from one continent to another with many conveniences on the board. For example, in comparison to ships planes are much faster and the passengers rarely feel sick.

The second positive aspect about airlines is that they influence the economic growth. For instance, Heathrow is one of the most frequently used airports in the world. Millions of people pass through its gates every day. The absence of Heathrow would significantly affect the economy of the country.

Finally, in today's world of developing technologies^{to} it is hard to imagine new inventions without ecological aspect. Modern scientists are creating patrol with eco-friendly emissions. Talking about the new sources of energy, we can see Bulgarian houses ~~that~~ with solar pannels on their ~~roofs~~^{roofs} used to produce electricity. According to this example, it can be proved that the sources of energy are replaceable and it is possible to create eco-friendly patrol for planes.

Чистовик

To sum it up, the pollution ~~is~~ of our planet is caused by diverse aspects and all of them should be considered while solving the problems of global warming. What we need to do is to contribute to the efforts of the mankind and reuse, recycle and reduce^c materials. ~~to~~ We should start from our neighbourhood and together rich our common goal - to make ~~the~~ Earth a better place to live.
