- 1 From a biological point of view, adolescence is the climax of one's life in terms of health and cognitive skills.
- 2 Due to the fact that no formal education existed back then, the only way children could make it to the top was by going into the workforce. Also, ~~the cruel~~ ~~the living conditions~~ played a crucial role; 2

4. According to the author of the first text "Perhaps more than anything else, teenagers have a remarkable built-in resiliency, seen in their exceptional ability to overcome crises and find something positive in negative events." From my vantage point, this is not exactly the truth. It's not uncommon for teenagers to go through long-lasting depressive episodes that impact their life greatly. These "rough patches" lay the foundation of a person's later divergences, such as emotional instability, ~~or~~ mood ~~swal~~ mood swings etc that may exacerbate the quality of their lives.

5. ~~In my opinion, there is no way teenagers could become~~ 2

3. These texts explore various topics: I presume that the first one focuses on the psychological aspects of the teenage years, while the second one shows how the concept of adolescence evolved over the centuries.

5. It is possible <sup>Ученые</sup> to become independent, although a teenager should be conscious of the hardships he might face — earning a living while studying is no mean feat.

Historical Landmarks to Visit

While doing the sights, I propose <sup>to visit</sup> the following landmarks: <sup>firstly</sup> ~~to visit~~ the Westminster Abbey, a well-known church in the inner ~~at~~ heart of London — it's a magnificent building ~~that everyone would be amazed at~~. ~~where~~ a lot of British monarchs were laid to rest. As well as that, the British Parliament, incidentally, located ~~in~~ <sup>in</sup> the ~~else~~ vicinity of the Westminster Abbey, is also worth having a glimpse at. Besides, the Buckingham Palace, where Elisabeth II previously resided, is a must-see — the sumptuous mansion will leave everyone gobsmacked. ~~The Tower of London and the Tower Bridge are with~~ By the same token, one will stand ~~in awe~~ <sup>in awe</sup> of the Tower of London as well as the Tower Bridge that will give a great insight into the architecture of ~~medieval~~ London. ~~the city in the medieval times.~~

What Transport to Use

⊗ The widely-known Tube (or <sup>simply</sup> the underground) is our best bet in terms of the means of transportation, but we could always ~~catch~~ <sup>hail</sup> a cab — the British taxi — in case we are in a hurry.

Where to Eat Out

Should we want to grab a bite of ~~the British~~ we could always go to the West End of the city. ~~A lot of cafes and restaurants~~ With a wide range of cafes and restaurants <sup>on offer</sup>, this is a place where we could try ~~the~~ traditional cuisines: clotted cream, Victoria Sponge, the <sup>British</sup> "Trifle", toad-in-the-hole, hot cross buns etc. — all the things you might have heard of.

Other ~~the~~ spots of the city ~~in the area~~ should we have some spare time, we definitely ~~can~~ we could also ~~visit~~ Hyde Park, where the Speaker's Corner is ~~to be~~ located. — it's an amazingly tranquil ~~and pleasant~~ place that will appeal to everyone.

Museums and Parks

London can boast of its numerous museums: the Tate Modern, the British Museum, the Museum of Modern Arts, the National Gallery etc. It ~~guess~~ would be fascinating if we visited the British Museum full of artworks by prominent artists. Apart from that, ~~Hyde Park~~ we should definitely visit the Speaker's Corner, which is located in Hyde Park — it's a tranquil place that would appeal to everyone.

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing to express my opinion on the article published recently. The article states that carbon emissions from planes lead to air pollution <sup>and global warming</sup> which impacts people's lives in the long-term. I ~~second~~ <sup>do not</sup> second the author's view ~~however~~, ~~it~~ planes are not the only major source of carbon emissions. ~~with~~ some remarks. For the following reasons.

I strongly believe that the fault for the increasing air pollution does not lie only with the CO<sub>2</sub> from planes. The author stipulates that ~~only~~ <sup>just</sup> a minority fly, ~~although~~ everyone will be affected. ~~However~~, ~~despite~~

~~This fact that~~ a great many people make use of other means of transportation such as automobiles — while the CO<sub>2</sub> from planes is voluminous, the ~~emissions from~~ autos' emissions are ~~virtually~~ ~~therefore~~ virtually the same.

As well as that, one may wonder why not harness in electric cars. ~~Unfor-~~ sensible thought may be, ~~the~~ <sup>this</sup> types of autos ~~are~~ is usually overpriced, which take Tesla, for example! however eco-friendly it ~~may~~ is, 80% of the world population are bereft of ~~such~~ an opportunity <sup>to purchase it</sup> due to these cars being exorbitant, ~~despite~~ ~~even~~

From my point of view, ~~the~~ such a grim state of environmental events, does not call for ~~reduction~~ <sup>in</sup> of the number of airplane flights; ~~rather~~ ~~rather~~ but rather a ~~more~~ ~~conscious~~ ~~approach~~ <sup>we could have taken</sup> ~~we~~ ~~take~~

I assume that if we ~~take~~ a more conscious approach to our everyday lives, there would be no need to cut down on ~~flights~~ ~~we~~ ~~would~~ ~~not~~ ~~even~~ ~~think~~ ~~of~~ ~~cutting~~ ~~down~~ ~~on~~ ~~airplane~~ ~~flights~~.

~~Yours faithfully,~~

~~Alice Woodhouse~~

we would have never thought of putting the blame on the means of ~~transport~~ ~~planes~~.
