1) After 1945 adolescents started realising their self-worth, which led teenagers to develop confidence and independence, and allowed them to voic wishes and opinions of their own. 1

2) Teenagers are exploited by commerce, as they are able to spread new fashions and tendencies effectively, presenting businessmen with an opportunity to make great profit. 2

3) No, they do not. Text 1 focuses on displaying various factors, that caused such social class as "teenagers" to appear, whereas the aim of Text 2 is to show such qualities and traits of adolescents, as being open to new things and unafraid to experiment. 1

4) I totally agree to a statement in Text 1, saying that teenagers can be the influencers. Adolescents are often easily influenced by the public opinion, as they have not found out their own preferences and opinions yet. While searching for their style, teenagers tend to follow the trends, and spread them further, to many of their sharing their ideas with friends, which makes them influencers. 1

5) I consider the cases of William Hewlett, David Packard and Bill Gates to be very inspirational, as each of them is a shining example of what heights any teenager, including me, may reach, if they overcome their fears and work on their goals for their dreams with determination. 2

Information sheet.

1) What museums and galleries to visit and what to see there?

A place worth visiting is the Tower of London, a former prison, which now attracts tourists wishing to see the jewels of the British monarchy and learn more about the history of the place.

Another famous tourist destination is ~~Baker Street~~, the house on 221B Baker Street, that belonged to Arthur Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes. Fans of the fictional detective can have an excursion to his apartment.

2) What historical landmarks to visit and what historical periods/events to learn about?

Everyone will find it interesting to ^{see the} visit Buckingham Palace, ~~the Royal Residence~~ the residence of the Royal Family, ^{see the} the residence of King Charles III and

After that, the Westminster Abbey may be visited, as it is a place of burial of many British monarchs and other prominent Brits, who brought fame to their Motherland. Visitors may also learn more about Henry VIII, one of England's most famous monarchs, who ~~he~~ had six marriages, that second of which, with Anne Boleyn, caused his dispute with the Church and led him to found his own. Having a walk in West End would also be useful, as it is a cultural region of London, steeped in history.

3) ~~What events/concerts to~~ Another place worth seeing is the Parliament, as ~~you will know~~ it will be fascinating to gain a deeper insight into its centuries-old history.

Dear Ms. Brown,

I am writing this letter as I have recently come across your article in "Times". As a marine biologist, I have found it to be interesting and thought-provoking. I share your opinion that plastic pollution is a major threat to the ecology. However, I do not agree with your idea of approaching the problem by removing all plastic at once. Let me analyze the situation and share my views below.

(~~To start with~~) I have seen many examples of destructive consequences of plastic contamination in my working experience. For instance, two years ago I went to the Caspian Sea to find out the reason behind the mass dying out of seals. After conducting a research, I found out that animals were dying in hundreds because the water contained too much plastic. That is just one of the numerous examples that prove that measures need to be taken immediately to prevent an ecological catastrophe. However, eliminating all plastic does not seem to be the best solution.

To begin with, plastic is one of the cheapest and most convenient materials known to humans. People in poorer areas of the world, like Nigeria, use it on a daily basis, and they do not have any affordable alternative, that is why it would be difficult to remove plastic from everywhere. Moreover, many people would be opposed to removing all plastic, as it is a too radical measure. Humans take time to adapt to new circumstances, which may be impossible after such a rapid change.

I believe there are more effective ways of resolving the issue. Firstly, it would make sense to remove plastic from just a few spheres of life, where the consequences would not be very tangible, for instance, the packaging industry. Instead of plastic, paper may be used. Another approach to tackling the issue is raising global awareness. Including lectures and classes about plastic pollution in educational programs may prove to be effective in the long run, as the younger generation will grow up to be responsible consumers, avoiding using too much plastic, and recycling their waste.

To sum up, it is crucial to take ~~steps~~ steps to resolving the issue of plastic pollution. I believe there are manifold methods to achieve that. I hope you will find my letter useful and gain a new insight into the issue. I am looking forward to getting your feedback.

Best regards,
 Mary Shirley
