The speech was not delivered by Martin Luther King for several reasons. Firstly, because of colloquialisms like „better off“ or „break seventy-five“ pounds of hemp." The speech of M. d. King didn't include them and was more official. Secondly, the spelling of words like "burthen" is obsolete for the time of Luther King. And finally, the ~~speech~~ choice of words is not suitable for a Baptist minister ("curse of God", for instance).

I suppose, the speech was delivered by George Washington.

PROPOSAL ON A SLEEPOVER AT THE MUSEUM

Introduction

The aim of this proposal is to analyze the importance of the attendance of the museums and describe the museum which may be chosen as a destination for an educational trip. Museums are the temples of history that allow people to get closer to their past. Not only should the local museums be visited, but the global ones should also be attended as the history of the humankind is stored in them. Museums broaden the mind and teach the visitors to value their past.

The British Museum versus Russian museums

The British Museum is undeniably one of the most famous museums in the world but there are many museums in Russia that are also decent and exciting. For example, the Historical Museum on the Red Square displays the artifacts of various periods, as well, and its main difference is the strong focus on Russian history. Generally, Russian museums specialise in particular epochs like Napoleon Wars or Russian Empire. But returning to the Historical Museum, its expositions range from prehistoric eras to the New Time so it will be appreciated by all the students. And this particular museum organises the sleepovers like the British Museum. It is bound to be an unforgettable experience as the class will immerse into the fascinating epoch.

"Royal Sleep" at the Historical Museum

"Royal Sleep" programme organised by the Historical Museum is an action-packed event that focuses on Russian history of 18-19th centuries. "Royal Sleep" includes a lecture on the noticed epoch to introduce the visitors into the historical context, a trail through the halls of the museum and a refined dinner among the real attributes of Russian sovereigns and nobility. The visitors will also

Be encouraged to undertake a tour of waltz ~~song~~ at an improvised ball at the end of the evening.

Details of the programme

The event lasts from 6pm on Friday till 9.30am on Saturday and is aimed at the adolescents from the age of 14. The cost is 5000 rubles with all the activities included. The maximum number of visitors is 40 and one adult will be able to accompany up to 5 teenagers.

Conclusion

Considering all the facts outlined above, "Royal Sleep" will be highly appreciated by all the students as they are familiar with the epoch and the programme is really entertaining. Also, they will be able to experience a truly royal life, so the opportunity should not be neglected.
