PLANNING A TRIP TO MUSEUMS

INTRODUCTION

PLANNING A TRIP TO MUSEUM

There is a commonly held belief that museums have already lost their value. However, from my perspective, museums have become much more popular since their foundation if the number of visitors is taken into account. In the modern world, museums remain to be one of the most reliable sources of information and aesthetic pleasure. In other words, all museums indubitably provide tourists with invaluable knowledge. One should definitely ~~visit~~ pay attention not only to their country's museums but also seize an opportunity to visit museums in the entire world. For instance, the British Museum will not leave anyone indifferent. As well as many other museums, it attempts to stir interest in people regardless of age, a genuine

ANALYSIS

As it has been aforementioned, one should learn <sup>Memorise</sup> not only the history of their Motherland but also <sup>3</sup> acquire some general knowledge about other countries. The British Museum tends to promote virtually all kinds of activities concerning the general history, such as arts, dancing, crafts, story telling and other. This wide range also applies to the suggested exhibition that primarily focuses on the Ancient Greece. What should be definitely mentioned is that activities are suitable for all ages, including adults and adolescents. Not only can one relish various kinds of entertainment but ~~people~~ <sup>children</sup> can also enjoy well-organised sleepovers. There is a firmly established timetable which allows children to experience virtually every thing at the British Museum: they camp out in a gallery, learn the steps of different arts and crafts, have snack breaks right in the gallery. In addition, one will have time for shopping and later bag collection. The advantages ~~are~~ may seem infinite. That said, the cost of the suggested adventure is seemingly overpriced: 65 pounds per each person, including ~~kids~~. ~~Adolescents who are not accompanied by adults (starting from 15-year-olds)~~ may face challenges if they are not adapted to staying alone. The real problem is that this interesting sleepover is limited and excludes other teenagers and youngsters (starting from 15-year-olds).

PROPOSAL

Personally, there might be proposed another trip, as not to eliminate any group ages. Our group may visit Victoria and Albert Museum, although it basically covers <sup>of</sup> the British history. The plan of the trip may be partly borrowed from the above mentioned sleepover, but it will be adjusted to 15-17-year-olds who will take their exams on <sup>more</sup> the British history for enrollment into any university. The ~~name of~~ trip will be dubbed 'Royal Empire' since it will cover the time period since the coronation of William the Conqueror in the Westminster Abbey. Youngsters will learn about the most crucial monarchs of their native country through medieval songs, traditions ~~and~~ and dancing. Moreover, there will be held a performance where teenagers will take on the roles of Elizabeth I, Henry VIII, Victoria and other rulers. Further details will be found in the leaflets after our next meeting. There will be discounts for students who do research work in history. We will most likely gather in the morning in order to have more time to spend for examination of the museum's artefacts.
