S, Av and AS: The three main prehistoric sites

Statue of Liberty: Made in Paris by two ~~French~~

GCMF: Cut off by the Colorado

City of Bath: Founded by the Romans as

ToL: It is essential to preserve such a monument, because it shows the great history of Britain that dates back to at least two centuries.

St, Av, As: They are important to look after because they provide the ~~history of first~~ first signs of a prehistoric community that no other monument can depict.

SOL: It is good to save a statue like this, since it shows the friendliness between France and ~~the~~ United States.

& Co B: It is useful to keep around this city because it provides good ~~look~~ look on how Romans used to relax.

GCMF: In my opinion, it is extremely important to preserve this park, because it shows how humans used to adapt to harsh ~~and~~ climates.

Museums play a huge role in modern global culture. Yes, you can easily look up anything on the internet, but it is one thing to know about a certain topic, and it is way better to see it with your own eyes. And it is essential to know about the culture of different countries, because you never know when you are going to need it, until you need to not embarrass yourself!

In my opinion, the idea of learning about the culture of a different country sounds really fun, because it can be a stress reliever or a source of fresh new ideas. But it is execution of the idea that matters too. For example, I do not understand the idea of the name for the activity. "Take a deep dive" sounds more like a name for a water associated activity, in my opinion. But what I do enjoy about the activity though, is how ~~anybody~~ a lot of people in the range of my age would be excited to ~~participate~~ participate in such an activity, because it offers what would otherwise be a set of attractive activities for a child my age. And the aspects are quite comfortable too, because you get plenty of time for every thing to be done!

Мероприятие 4

~~In the con~~ To conclude this, I'd like to mention how this way of teaching kids is pretty effective, because you get to socialize with children and ~~talk about whatever~~ discuss whatever you've just done, therefore engraving your knowledge about it even more. I would definitely recommend it to my friends, because they are all of same age group as me, and as mentioned above, would be pretty invested in such an activity. The thing about it I like most is drawing, because I am really into drawing, and designing my own character seems like a lot of fun!

Statue of Liberty is important because it shows the friendliness that France and

City of Bath is playing a huge role in depicting how Romans used to spend their time, hence why it is so important.

Grand Canyon National Park is a park very rich in history of how humans used to adapt to harsh climates.

Museums play a huge role in modern global literature. Yes, you can easily look up anything on the internet, but it is far better to know ~~to~~ about a certain topic by meeting it in person. Not only that, but knowing about the ~~entire~~ culture of different countries enables you to be way more knowledgeable than you would have!

In my opinion, learning about a completely new culture sounds really fun, because it could give you quite a batch of fresh new ideas! But it is also the execution of the idea that matters. Say, what would you think of when you see "Take a deep dive"? I would think of something water related, which is not about Japan at all! But negativity aside, I do enjoy how attractive it is for the people in my range of age. It offers what would otherwise be a magnet of an activity for teens! And it is quite well presented, too, since you get plenty of time for every thing to get done!

To conclude this, I would like to mention how this way of teaching kids is very effective. You get a good bunch of ~~to~~ children your age to socialize with ~~and~~ and discuss whatever topic you have learnt, therefore engraving it into your ~~memory~~ memory even more!

I would ~~definet~~ definitely recommend it to my friends because they are of ~~the~~ same age group as me, and as mentioned above, would probably be very invested! The aspect I like about this activity is drawing, because I am really into scrambling some doodles, and designing my own manga character seems really fun!
