The speech was delivered by Martin Luther King Jr. 2
 It's Martin Luther King's Prophetic Stand in the Shadow of the Confederacy.

There are several factors that indicate that ^{the speech did not belong to} Barack Obama. 2
 First of all, "White America" and "Negroes" were common terms used during the Civil Rights Movement of the 1950s and 1960s, which, eventually, predates Barack Obama's political career. 2
 Secondly, the speech focuses on the Birmingham Campaign, a pivotal moment of the Civil Rights Movement led by Martin Luther. 2
 Thirdly, if we delve into language peculiarities, then we can notice how often the author of the speech uses the word "Negroes". During the time of Obama's political career, ~~he~~ ~~the~~ term "African Americans" ~~was~~ substituted it with 2

Proposal

~~Museums stand as testaments to the curiosity and creativity of the humankind. They offer invaluable portals~~

Introduction.

It is common knowledge that museums stand as testaments to the curiosity and creativity of the humankind. In fact, they offer invaluable portals to our shared past. While local museums provide connections to our immediate heritage, venturing beyond them in order to learn about deep historical influences on our and foreign cultures is crucial. As such, museums play an important role in educating us by organizing tours, ~~offering~~ hosting lectures, printing guides that cover linguistic, political, and economic dimensions of our evolution. This proposal will explore the significance of museums in history, delve into the educational methods they employ, ~~provide insights on the~~ compare renowned Russian museums to the British Museum, and offer a recommendation of an event in a museum of the ~~author's~~ ~~choice~~ writer's choice.

~~Comparison of the Russian and British Museums.~~

Comparison of the Russian and British Museums.
First of all, we will discuss ~~how~~ ^{why} Russian and British Museums are alike. For instance, the State Hermitage Museum of St. Petersburg is one of the most famous of its kind in Russia. Something that it and the British Museum have in common is their focus on ~~artworks~~ masterpieces, spanning across multiple cultures.

However, one of their differences ~~is~~ is that the State Hermitage Museum of St. Petersburg ~~focuses on domestic artwork~~ encompasses more ^{often times} domestic artwork. Whereas Russian museums shed light on historical periods of the 19th and 20th century and ~~cultures of the~~ military events, the British Museum ~~tends to focus on~~ emphasizes the importance of global events. For example, Russian museums tend to consider the historical frameworks and culture of ~~its~~ indigenous ~~peo~~ nations such as the Bashkir, Dagestani people. Indisputably, my friends and peers would be interested in learning ~~at~~ more about their state's heritage. They will most likely want to attend virtual or offline tours ~~and~~ and lectures organized by the staff of the Russian museums.

Recommendations of an event in a museum
 Indubitably, I would advise to host a historical lecture in the State Hermitage Museum of St. Petersburg on the topic of national identity. The event will be called "How to persevere your culture and national identity in the face of historical oppression." There, participants will get closer to drawing insights from political events of the 20th century in Russia, analyze economic frameworks, and undertake a special excursion before the main gathering. ~~Then~~ Then, they will attend a lecture on the cultural independence movements, which will bring the past to life. The target audience is aimed at youngsters starting from the age of 15 to 18. The event will be held on the 18th and 19th of February during the weekend.
