The Romans built a lot of fine houses and erected strong walls, which you can still see in Britain. Many residents of the British Isles started to live like the Romans, ^{they} wore Roman clothes and attended theatres and bars. ~~At~~ Four hundred years ago it was typical of British people to speak, read and even write in Latin. During the later years of Roman rule ~~but~~ they became Christian.

~~Тако~~
 Such places of cultural heritage should be preserved by people

1. Great Barrier Reef is renowned for ~~its~~ the world's largest collection of corals it owns, and
 such sites are true treasures for scientists,
 that's why we should preserve them.

2. Every single country should protect its historic places, and Historic District of Old Québec is definitely not an exception. Such ~~sights~~ sites can attract more tourists to the country.
 because

3. ~~Yellow stone~~ Yellowstone National Park is a perfect representative of natural sites, where you can spot ~~half of the~~ an enormous amount of geothermal features, which makes it one of the kind.

4. As a tourist, I've always wanted to visit Palace of Westminster or Westminster Abbey to become closer to the Royal family and their everyday life.

5. Music is one of the most vibrant forms of art, so Sydney Opera House deserves its popularity and should be preserved for the future visitors.

Nowadays museums are those touristic sites that people tend to visit more and more. I reckon, everyone desires to attend at least one museum whenever he or she has an opportunity to visit a foreign country. Being aware of the famous exhibitions all over the world forms a versatile personality, this is the reason why it is so essential.

Turning to the plan of the sleepover that London's British Museum offers, my opinion is that it is not the best option for spending the night with your child.

First of all, it is filled with various activities, and it can be arduous for the child to stay concentrated all the time.

It is also worth mentioning that the following table is definitely not suitable for a child. Getting up at 7 a.m. and going to bed at midnight can be a struggle for the smaller ones. Instead, I would suggest another plan.

~~First of all~~, I would like to see our small visitors to get acquainted with the most famous exhibition of Hermitage, where you can see a great range of landscapes. Kids and teenagers will be able to see popular paintings, ^{which} they have probably heard about, overnight.

This sleeper should be called ^{Числовик 5} "The Night of Art." Younger children will have a chance to paint a picture themselves and then watch a short educational cartoon, which will be suitable for their age. Teenagers from thirteen up to eighteen years old will find out more about famous painters of Russia and many foreign countries, such as Spain, Italy and France. Both groups will have plenty of time ^{free} to have proper rest.
