Roman Empire has a great influence on life of Britons. During the Roman invasion British people got used to wearing Roman clothes, visiting theatres and going to baths. Also, some Britons learnt how to read and even write in ~~English~~ Latin, a language which was brought by Romans. Moreover, even nowadays we can spot the results of Roman invasion. They are ~~strong walls~~ of fine houses, which were built by Romans in British cities.

Although, this a range of activities would be inappropriate for teenagers, it is still well-organised. Children have a timetable of activities for ~~all~~ the two days and their parents do not need to search for other ^{something} activities additionally. Moreover, ~~first~~ children will have a sleepover in the Ancient Greece gallery and the adults do not have to book a hotel for them.

If I ~~would~~ be was organising ~~the~~ tour in the museum, I ^{would} ~~also~~ choose the Hermitage for this ~~dim.~~ The theme of the activity would be "The life of Russian Royal Family" and it would be called "Memory of the ^{royal} past". The most interested in this activity age group would be teenagers of 14-16-year-old. The activity would include excursion around the museum, making photos with exhibitions, and watching of ~~some~~ documentary films about Russian Royal Family. ~~The tour~~ ^{As to organising} would include transporting of teenagers from the museum to their ~~house~~ meeting spot by bus and a dinner in the cafeteria of the
