Прочитайте отрывок из романа Джейн Остин. Выполните задания по тексту.

The Dashwood family had lived in Sussex for many years. Their home was Norland Park, a large estate where they were respected by their neighbours. The owner of the estate was an old, unmarried man. For many years he lived with his sister, who kept his house. When she died, he felt lonely and invited the family of his nephew, Mr Henry Dashwood, to live with him. Mr Dashwood was the legal heir of Norland. The old man enjoyed their company, especially the cheerfulness of the children, and grew very fond of the whole family.

Mr Henry Dashwood had one son from his first marriage and three daughters from his second. His son was already well provided for by his mother's fortune, but his daughters had very little money. Their future depended greatly on their father's inheritance.

When the old man died, his will caused disappointment. He left Norland to Mr Dashwood, but only for his lifetime. After him, the estate would belong to his son and then to his grandson, a young child. This meant Mr Dashwood could not sell the estate or use it to help his wife and daughters. The girls received only a small sum of money.

Mr Dashwood did not live long after his uncle. Before his death, he asked his son John Dashwood to take care of his stepmother and sisters. John promised to help them and at first planned to give them money. However, after thinking more carefully, and influenced by his selfish wife, he began to feel that such generosity was unnecessary.

Soon after the funeral, Mrs John Dashwood came to Norland as if it already fully belonged to her. This behaviour deeply upset Mrs Dashwood, who wanted to leave the house. She stayed only because of her daughters.

The eldest daughter, Elinor, was sensible and calm, and often advised her mother. Marianne, the second daughter, was emotional and passionate, sharing her mother's strong feelings. Margaret, the youngest, was kind but immature. While Elinor tried to remain practical, her mother and Marianne gave themselves completely to their sorrow.

Write at least 150 words.

I would like to help this family with finding a book for them. I can recommend a book which is called "Sleeping beauty". It is a fairytale, but I can't name the author accurately because this story was made up by different people.

This book is about a princess who fell asleep forever and can only be waken up by a kiss of someone, who truly loves her. Many princes try to wake her up, but all their trials are unsuccessful. Then happens something extremely unexpected.

The language in this book can be a bit difficult because of the ancient words. However, in general, the story is written amazing and makes the reader feel the atmosphere of the book.

The topic of the story is love. It has a huge affect on the reader's perception of love. It also mentions such significant topics such as family, friendship and loyalty. Moreover, it includes some problems like unkindness and arrogance.

This book would be nice for a whole family because of the plot and the important topics that it mentions. It makes children pay more attention to such things as love and kindness and it can also improve their imagination. Moreover, it helps them fall asleep and have some fantastic dreams.
